

Fur Trimmings are Now all the Rage

With the fear of a siege fading farther and farther into the background, Paris, with a characteristic rebound, has turned from the contemplation of business inactivity and darkened streets to the theater, the cafe and renewed commerce.

The large dressmaking establishments which are run by women have not closed. They have been kept open in the face of all the hard times. When there were no gowns to make, the employees were set to work upon the making of bandages and hospital garments, knitting mufflers and socks for the soldiers. In fact, the knitting of something has become such a fad that fashionable women everywhere are knitting.

Petrograd Blue with Lining of Crimson Gives a Military Look to Cape.

But as the Germans were driven back from Paris the call for gowns from the outside world leaked thru and the designers began to fulfill the demand.

Quite military are some of these new frocks. One frock seen recently was made of a new fabric on the broadcloth order, with the same high sheen, but a twilled weave in khaki color. The waist was made very simple, and with the body and sleeves in one full length, fitting very closely below the elbow. There was a seam in the back of the waist, and the front was cut in a U shape, which was slit from the under part of the U to the waistline. On either side of this opening, which was filled with a guimpe of heavy lace, the edges were bound with black braid and large loops of trimmed on the under side with smaller loops and buttons from wrist to elbow. The skirt was made with a full long tunic with a very wide band of self-colored velvet around the bottom of it. About six inches of the narrower underskirt showed beneath. The center of the skirt was slit down about twelve inches, the edges bound with the braid and the loops and buttons of braid on either side corresponding to the placing of the loops on the waist. The whole effect showed the influence which the uniforms of the combatants are having upon the fashions.

Another frock noticeable for its military effect was made of blue cloth and an abundance of gold braid.

The present time of the year is an excellent one to buy clothes. The freak styles of the early part of the season which looked as though they might really be worthy of attention have been sifted out, and there is not the danger of buying something which will soon be out of style. Now the stores are beginning to clear out their stock and usually everything is reduced to a fraction of what they were at the beginning of the season.

Bear in mind when buying the new clothes that the various loops and tucks which draped our coats last year are more—now the straight lines prevail. Bodices and coats fit the shoulders rather plainly, as do the skirts at the hips, although they may flare out at the ankles to four or eight yards.

The tight long sleeve is established and the short kimono sleeve has had its day, although the long sleeve made in this manner is still correct if it fits the lower arm closely. The raglan-cut sleeve is no longer startling, but it is an accepted style which may be bought with impunity if liked. The principal thing is to know whether it is becoming or not.

The Roman striped silks, so popular a short time ago, must be viewed with suspicion, for they are being worn very little even as belts. Instead the girdles of wonderful Chinese and Japanese embroidery are correct and the waistcoats of stripes have given place to those of fur and fur-cloth.

Most of the suits are trimmed with fur, perhaps just a band around the neck and sleeves; possibly narrow bands of it are used around the bottoms of tunics, collars and sashes. One stunning frock had the lower skirt section of a fawn colored broadcloth dress of beaver fur. Another suit had a waist coat of Persian lamb and Russian kolinsky was used for trimming bands.

Net and satin are combined into many charming evening frocks, and one I have used for an illustration. Cream colored net is used for the bodice and the pointed tunic. The girdle which goes up in a point in the front meeting the point of the V-shaped neck, is of coral satin. A wide band of this satin finishes the bottom of the tunic and makes the lower skirt. The simplicity of the materials and development makes it especially becoming to the young women.

The military effect has kept the capes strongly in evidence and the cape used for evening wear in the illustration is one made of Petrograd blue broadcloth and lined with deep rich crimson. The fur collar is made of kolinsky, a Russian mink which closely resembles sable.

Net and Satin are Combined in this Smart Evening Frock

Another evening frock consists of white faille silk and has a tulle tunic with a band around the bottom of white satin ribbon. This tunic is but a little shorter than the satin underskirt, which is edged with a fringe of glass beads two inches wide.

The sailor hat is very smart, but is changing a little in shape. Now the right side is narrower than the left and the crown is shallower. Some of the small hats look like hats of an years ago. Small and perched on the early Victorian period of seventy odd top of a head whose coiffure is pulled away from the ears they are distinctly quaint. Even the streamers are reappearing in a modified way, and are to be seen on small sailors and toques alike.

Handicapped

This is the Case of Many Medina People.

Too many Medina citizens are handicapped with bad backs. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief but cannot reach the cause if the kidneys are weak. To eliminate the pains and aches of kidney backache you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys—thousands testify to their merit. Can you doubt Medina evidence? Mrs. George W. Perkins, 544 W. S. Road, Medina, O., says: "My kidneys gave me considerable trouble. I had severe attacks of backache. I suffered from headaches and spells of dizziness. Mornings I felt stiff and lame. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and after I had used them a short time the ailments left me. Others in my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't ask simply for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Perkins had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
